ZOO'S GUIDE TO ALL YOU NEED TO KNOW, WATCH, BUY

HOTTEST
WEEK ON TV EVER!

PART I

Wow! It's Gemma Atkinson

Bury bombshell's busty comeback!

Like incredibly good-looking busses, you wait for one of TV's sexiest babes to make a small-screen return... and then two come along at once!

Gemma on Emmerdale!

Emmerdale is on weeknights, 7pm, plus an extra episode on Thursday, 8pm!

Last week, the warmest day of the year (17.5°C, Murlough, Co Down, now that you ask) was followed by storms, proving that our weather still can't be trusted. So until glorious sunshine becomes as regular a fixture as Adnan Januzaj diving for Man United, you might as well hole up and enjoy whatever the TV has to offer.

Thankfully, there couldn't be a better time to plonk yourself in front of the box. Booby babe Gemma Atkinson – seen here sunning herself in the Caribbean – is just one such remarkable reason to pick up the remote and tune in, after the 30-year-old curvy cutie joined the cast of Emmerdale – or, as we call it, Gemmadale – playing a runaway bride.

Still, if that's not enough of a reason to watch your new favourite soap, then the ex-Hollyoaks hotty's promise of "catfights, flings and trouble with the police" should persuade you to turn over from whatever Friends re-run you're watching.

TURN OVER FOR MICHELLE
KEEGAN!

UPFRONT

Magnificent Michelle Keegan!

Sexy soap star hits top gear!

And if glorious Gemma back on our screens wasn't enough...

Before we go any further, give yourself a great big pat on the back, because somehow you've managed to survive over seven months without having Michelle Keegan's fabulous frame beamed onto your TV.

And that's no small feat, especially when you consider that the Stockport siren was on TV playing Tina McIntyre in Corrie for over six years! But don't worry, your "sexy babe detox" is about to come to an end when Michelle returns to your screens in the BBC One car-showroom drama Ordinary Lies.

But there is a grey cloud hanging over this new TV outing for ZOO's former Hot 101 winner, and that's the sudden realisation that Michelle can no longer scoop the gong for Sexiest Female at the British Soap Awards for a seventh year running.

Still, soap's loss could be the film industry's gain, because the brunette beauty admitted only last month that she wouldn't mind trying her luck in Hollywood and a few feature films. "If my agent says it's a good idea for me to go, then I would," she said.

Now, let's all cross our fingers and hope that Michelle has the same agent that landed Gemma Atkinson her sexy, topless scenes in 2009's oft-overlooked, star-filled art yarn Boogie Woogie.

HOTTEST
WEEK ON TV EVER!

PART II

Ordinary Lies
is on BBC One,
Tuesdays,
9pm!

SPOILER ALERT!

Game Of Thrones Season 5 mysteries decoded!

Save yourself the effort of reading reams of GOT novels and get the answers to the must-know questions before the new season starts

There's less than a month to go until the blood-soaked new season of Game Of Thrones bursts onto screens. But we're sure we didn't have to tell you that – or to remind you to watch the brand new trailer on ZOOToday.com.

However, with so much action-packed excitement crammed into the teasers, we're willing to bet you missed a few noticeable spoilers. So save yourself the trouble of reading five books cover-to-cover and bone up on these carefully selected nuggets, gleaned by ZOO's fantasy-loving brethren!

CERSEI COMPLETELY STARKERS!

OK, we don't actually have a shot of Cersei in the nip. But that's not to say you won't see Lena Headey in the buff next season. During filming in Croatia, 200 security guards were employed to stop rubbernecks catching a peek, shop owners were paid to bugger off, all phones were confiscated, and it cost a massive £135k to keep Headey's naked form under wraps!

CREepy MASK GUYS!

If you've watched the trailer, it would have been hard to miss all these odd looking blokes in brass masks. Chances are you've no idea who they are. The answer is noblemen, working in the shadows to undermine (and end) Daenerys Targaryen's reign in Meereen. Expect to see lots of bloodshed replacing last season's, boring tête-à-têtes.

A STARK IN WINTERFELL!

Remember the Stark family crypt underneath Winterfell? Well Sansa appears to have made her way there, alongside a load of soldiers. Which is odd, as this doesn't happen in the books. In all likelihood she's taking over as another character, and there's a good chance it's Wyman Manderly, who baked parts of her enemies into pies...

WINTER IS DEFINITELY COMING!

We can't be the only ones tired of gruff-talking northsman claiming "Winter is coming". From the look of this shot of Brienne Of Tarth, things appear to be getting blizzly. The pair steer clear of the snow-covered landscapes of Westeros, so there's a solid chance that Winter (and those pesky zombies) could head south...

And if you haven't seen the first four seasons...

None of this will make any sense whatsoever. In which case, if you like the sound of Dungeons & Dragons crossed with House Of Cards, go watch Seasons 1-4. And if not? Go down the pub and watch the football. Or something.

→ Game Of Thrones returns to Sky Atlantic on 13 April

"I hated racing games... until this!"

New motor-racing sim Project CARS will win over the petrolhead naysayers, says The Stig. Strap yourself in, feel the realism and prepare to be blown away!

PROJECT CARS FIRST LOOK!

When the guys from Slightly Mad Studios started work on what they hoped would be the most realistic driving game ever made, they turned to a man famed not only for his incredible skills behind the wheel, but also his absolute hatred for racing games.

We are, of course, referring to The Stig. Before joining Project CARS, The Stig would, he says, "rather have ironed his eyelashes than waste time on a drive simulation".

Now, three years later, Slightly Mad and The Stig have created the most realistic driving experience ever.

Here's The Stig to tell you how he improved the game...

THE STIG'S VERDICT

THE ROAR OF THE ENGINE

THE STIG SAYS "I've spent years listening to engines through earplugs and a helmet but the engine notes come through really well to my slightly deaf ears. My favourite feature is the tyre screech under-braking, which I pushed for in order to augment the sensory feedback to the driver. If you pussyfoot around, you won't wake your neighbours."

→ Project CARS is out mid-May on PS4, Xbox One and PC

CREDIBLE WEATHER CONDITIONS

THE STIG SAYS "Simulating weather conditions is tough; especially heavy rain. When I explained how cars would react in wet-racing conditions, and they simulated it, I literally punched the air... I don't know how the developers did it, because the programming side is voodoo to me, but when I drove through a big, shiny puddle, the car aquaplaned and spun its rear tyres until I corrected. For me, this was something special."

ACCURATE TRACKS

THE STIG SAYS "I've used Formula One simulators whose tracks don't live up to the fidelity of Project CARS. That's a bold statement but it's true. I've done a million laps around Oulton Park and it's one of the finest circuits in the world because of bankings, cambers in the surface and, above all, the bumps. I made sure they included those finer details and it was only when I spun out practising a lap on the game that I knew they'd nailed it.

TRUE-TO-LIFE CARS

THE STIG SAYS "The beauty of working for Top Gear is that I've driven almost every car in the game. It's not guesswork when I tell the developers that the Zonda has more understeer, where the front tyres start slipping at the apexes of hairpins. Or that the McLaren F1 gets 'floaty' at 200mph because of its lack of downforce. I've driven those cars, and they've made my changes, so I know the cars are as realistic as possible."

W.T.F!

The maddest thing we've seen this week!

Peckham HIGH street!

Del Boy and Rodney's van takes to the skies

Only Fools And Horses may have departed our TV screens but the "lovely jubbly" spirit is still flying high in Northampton.

Inspired by the three-wheeler that Del Trotter used to ferry his "hooky" gear around in, Bobby Frankham has taken a Reliant Rialto, painted it yellow and converted it into a flying machine.

The Rialto flies thanks to a huge, rear-mounted propeller and can be spotted in Northants skies when weather permits. And when Bobby wants to land, he cuts the power and floats to earth. If Bobby's idea catches on, this time next year he'll be a millionaire!

Sequels, so hot right now!

In Europe shooting Zoolander 2, Ben Stiller and Owen Wilson arrive at Paris Fashion Week to give a refresher course of "blue steel"

Just when we started to think that there wasn't anything more to life than being really, really, ridiculously good-looking, along comes Derek Zoolander (Ben Stiller) and Hansel (Owen Wilson) to surprise everyone with a shock appearance at Paris Fashion Week – with a walk-off!

In case you were wondering, it was to kick-off the long-awaited sequel to comedy classic Zoolander, which is due for release next February. And if rumours are to be believed, Mugatu (Will Ferrell) and Matilda (Christine Taylor) should be in line for a return, alongside new cast member Penelope Cruz.

But if you thought that was impressive, wait until you log onto ZOOTODAY.com and check out the footage from the show, although unfortunately Derek, a well-known ambi-turner, still can't turn left...

PICS: Splash! Exposure, Rex Features

Get FACT

Zoolander was banned in Malaysia because the film used a fictional Malaysian president for Mugatu's assassination attempt

MARVIN GAYE
GOT TO GIVE IT UP - PART 1
GOT TO GIVE IT UP - PART 2

Blurred Lines no rip-off

There's no way Robin Thicke and Pharrell Williams ripped-off Marvin Gaye's Got To Give It Up. Blurred Lines is a real party anthem that gets me up and dancing every time!

Marvin Gaye is my favourite musician of all time. The man was a genius and made some brilliant music, and every so often a song will pop up that sounds like something he's done. But that's only because he inspired so many people.

I love Blurred Lines because it reminds me of those great Marvin tracks, so it's a real shame it's come to this.

I don't even think the song is copied; there are a few similarities but they've not ripped anybody off.

Let's just hope the £5m payout doesn't hurt Robin too much. It's a hell of a lot of money for a bloke who's only released a couple of songs!

EMAIL YOUR QUESTIONS FOR DAVID TO HAYEMAKER@ZOOTODAY.COM

IN NEED OF A HAYEMAKER THIS WEEK... DOG KILLER

We've all seen the story about Jagger, the poor dog poisoned at Crufts – and there's nothing that angers me more than people who harm animals. We don't know who did it, but I hope when they're caught the judge passes the sentence of a visit from me.

Then, I'll let them know exactly what I think about animal cruelty...

Cranky Clarkson

I met Jeremy Clarkson when I was on Top Gear. He's 6ft 5in-tall and a real lump. The staff couldn't give out enough sandwiches when I was on the show, so I think the real reason for his latest bust-up is yet to come out. Getting your salad late is no reason to punch a man, is it?

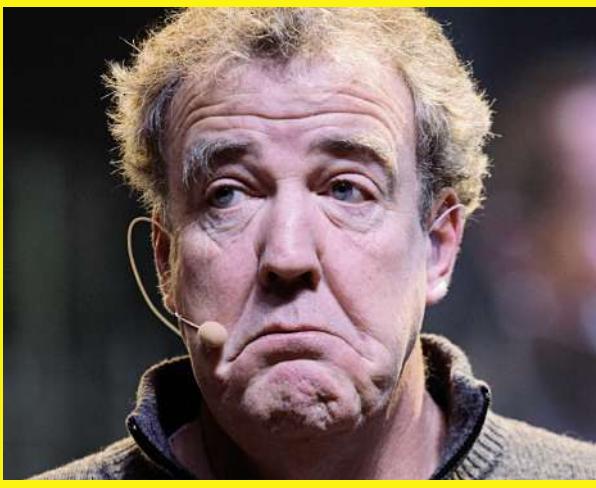

They could always go to a park and settle it like men. I'll ref it!

Chin-up, Dancing Man

I saw the story of the Dancing Man – that fella who went out to have a little dance before people started filming and taking the mick out of him because of his weight.

I love to have a dance at a party, but I'm always worried people are watching and filming. All I can say to the bloke is, don't let others ruin your night: dance like no one's watching!

Bad losers!

After their defeat to Arsenal in the FA Cup, Manchester United should have known better than to take their players on a jolly to the Cheltenham Festival.

Fans live and die by the results of their team, and will be gutted to find out the players didn't seem bothered by their latest loss. Ashley Young, Daley Blind, Rafael and co should get their heads down and train hard for the next match.

ASK DAVID!

What would you do to the Aston Villa pitch invaders if they jumped in the ring?

TOM FRIDAY, Essex

As a sportsman in full flow, there's nothing worse than having your concentration broken. It can be really tough to get back in the swing of things, so it's lucky so many Villa fans ran on. That said, I wouldn't fancy myself against 22 angry footballers!

If someone were to invade the ring while I was boxing, I'd give them a real belting before getting on with my fight!

UPFRONT

MOTORS

GO WITH THE FLOW!

NanoFlowcell's Quantino is the futuristic family car that runs on salt water!

You may have already heard that oil reserves are low and the polar bears in the Arctic Circle are getting annoyed about us destroying their homes with our exhaust fumes.

That's why the Liechtenstein-based NanoFlowcell AG is working on a powertrain that can, theoretically, run on seawater and produces nothing in the way of ice-cap destroying emissions from the exhaust pipe.

The Quantino is the third car from the marque to use flowcell technology, which sees two tanks of ionic fluid (salty water)

– one positively charged and the other negatively charged – create energy to drive electric motors.

The family-friendly Quantino features four low-voltage motors – one driving each wheel – that develop a total of 136bhp. The result is a city slicker that can cruise at speeds of up to 124mph for 620 miles before the tanks need filling up.

It also looks pretty neat, sitting on 22-inch wheels and sporting a bulbous body kit that makes it appear like a Nissan Juke mated with a Tron light cycle.

There's no word on price but the engineers claim we'll see one on the road in the next few years. Let's hope Shell starts stocking positively and negatively charged ionic fluids, otherwise we won't be getting very far.

GET ELECTRIFIED!

More battery-powered machines to get excited about

Ford MoDe:Me

Ford recently unleashed an electric bicycle that can fold down and fit into the back of one of its cars. The MoDe:Me features a 200-watt motor that allows cyclists to cruise at 15mph without getting a sweat on. It also has indicators, brake lights and a built-in sat nav that sends vibrations to the corresponding handlebar.

Audi R8 e-tron

Audi's latest V10-powered R8 is a thorough overhaul of the best-selling supercar but the marque is also selling an all-electric e-tron version. The lithium-ion batteries and dual electric motors have been tweaked to develop 450bhp and propel the machine from 0-62mph in just 3.9 seconds. Who said saving the planet had to be boring?

Kia Sportspace

OK, so this slinky estate might not be a pure electric vehicle but it does use battery packs to boost the 1.7-litre diesel engine and offer temporary all-wheel drive without sapping too much fuel. It's also one of the sexiest estates we've laid eyes on in a long time.

The Gunman

of the week!

With a cast of epic proportions (Sean Penn, Javier Bardem, Ray Winstone and Idris Elba) and directed by Taken's Pierre Morel, you'll head into the cinema with high hopes and won't be too disappointed.

In this action flick, Penn plays Jim Terrier, a reformed hitman seeking redemption. While living in the Democratic Republic Of Congo, he spends his days protecting mining operations and his nights killing its enemies. But once he's tasked with offing the minister of mining, he has no choice but to leave the country and his love interest (Jasmine Trinca). Cue lots of running, shooting and a fair amount of tension as he tries to figure out why everyone wants him dead.

If it weren't for the slightly bonkers ending, this film would be class. ★★★★☆

Broadchurch Series 2

It's not often we recommend you pick up an ITV box set, but if you've managed to miss the hype surrounding this British whodunnit series – set on the Dorset coast – you must have been hiding under a very large (stick of) rock.

With David Tennant and Olivia Coleman playing police partners, the second series follows on from the trial of Joe Miller, arrested for murder in the first series. The build-up is more addictive than a Sunday Netflix sesh. ★★★★

Horrible Bosses 2

The long-suffering trio of Nick (Jason Bateman), Kurt (Jason Sudeikis) and Dale (Charlie Day) return after rising up against their employers in the first film. But this time, they're trying to be their own bosses.

Motherf***ker Jones (Jamie

Foxx) features again as an unorthodox hustler and, brilliantly, Julia (Jennifer Aniston) is back and even more sex-crazed and filthy.

As comedy sequels go, you won't find much better, so sit back and enjoy. ★★★★

The Voices

If there was ever a film that you shouldn't see when you're hungover and feeling slightly delicate, it's this. Featuring everything from talking heads (the severed kind, not the '80s American rock band) stored in a fridge to interacting animals and Ryan Reynolds singing in a luminous pink and orange suit, it's a black comedy that must be approached with caution.

Reynolds is unhinged factory worker Jerry, whose pets speak to him. Tired of the bachelor life, Mr Whiskers and Bosco (a cat and a dog, both voiced by Reynolds) encourage him to pursue office crush Fiona (Gemma Arterton). But things go south swiftly when she stands him up for a date.

Surreal, mind-boggling and also starring Anna Kendrick, its weirdness will hold your interest. ★★★★☆

You may not have heard chef-cum-rapper Action Bronson's effortless New York-influenced lilt, but it's hard to miss the oversized rapper with the hipster beard. A QUICK WORD WITH...

JODIE MARSH

HI, JODIE! CONGRATS ON YOUR NEW SERIES JODIE MARSH ON... PARTICULARLY WOMEN WHO PAY FOR SEX!

Thanks! I had a lot of fun recording these documentaries.

HOW DO YOU CHOOSE WHAT TOPICS YOU'D LIKE TO COVER?

Often, TLC want me to do shows that I don't particularly fancy, but we always reach a compromise in the end. For example, I've wanted to do a show on drugs for ages and they eventually said we should do one on legal highs (airing 25 March, 10pm, TLC). At the time, I thought it sounded naff: I wanted to do one on crack cocaine or something, but I trusted them and when we started filming it, I knew they were right.

YOUR FIRST EPISODE IN THE SERIES FOLLOWS WOMEN WHO PAY MEN FOR SEX. WHAT DO YOU THINK OF THAT CONCEPT?

I can actually speak from experience with wanting to pay men for sex – and almost going through with it! I used to want sex all day, every day. I was a nightmare and I went through a dry patch where I couldn't meet anyone at all. I know what you're about to say, but loads of men were intimidated by me back then; I was such a party animal. So, I started looking online at escort agencies. I was tempted to pay for it – the only thing that stopped me was that I couldn't find anyone I fancied enough. If I'm paying for it, I want them to look like David Gandy, not a minger!

AS SOMEONE WHO'S CELIBATE, SURELY YOU MISS SEX?

No, not any more! But I've got through it. I get my thrills from doing ZOO shoots; the fact I can still do those sexy shoots, dressing up in gorgeous lingerie, doing a job I absolutely love, I'm buzzing and I don't need a bloke. When I fall in love, I'll be super-active again. But right now, I'm happy with my diamond-encrusted dildo!

AH YES, YOU'VE MENTIONED THAT BEFORE...

It serves me well! I used to have it out on display in my house because it's that pretty – but then I thought my mum and dad come around too often, so I've had put it away for now.

SO, IF YOU HAD TO PAY A CELEBRITY FOR SEX, WHO WOULD BE THE LUCKY FELLA?

I'd rather pay Ed Sheeran to come round and play the guitar and sing for me than pay a guy for sex. If you're asking for my dream night, It'd be Ed performing, while I sh*g Alexander Skarsgård. Then, I'd tell Ed to put the guitar down and join in, and we could always chuck Eva Mendes into the mix, too. That'd work for me!

The Real Rosie Jones

TALKING OF HAVING AN INDIAN, WHAT'S YOUR IDEAL CURRY?

Normally, I start off with poppadoms, but I'll have about 50 to myself, so I'm full. Then I'll go on to starters like prawn puri, ribs and chicken tikka masala. You know some Indian places do egg-fried rice?

NO...

They do. I have that as well!

RIGHT. ANYWAY, WHAT ABOUT YOUR MAIN?

I'd have lamb madras. I like it hot, but not too hot. There's always someone who gets a really spicy one. I also like keema naan. And that spinach and cheese thing, saag paneer – that's great. When I did a bike ride through India with Holly Peers and India

Reynolds, we ate that for ten days solid.

TELL US ABOUT IT...

It was me, India and Holly riding around India for breast-cancer charity, CoppaFeel. We had our names on the back of our T-shirts. No one believed India was her actual name, everyone just laughed at her. →

TO STOP MEN FROM STRAYING*

WHO ARE YOUR BEST MODEL MATES?

Me, India and Holly are really close. Also, I'm really good friends with Emma Glover. You become pally with all the girls.

WHAT ARE OTHER NORMAL WOMEN LIKE WITH YOU?

I've never had a bad experience with anyone, but then again I don't go out and say, "Oh, I'm a ZOO covergirl!"

HOW DO YOU LEARN TO BE A MODEL?

I seriously believe it's not about looks. There are so many girls that are amazing, but if someone's a d**k, they won't get re-booked. I've learned to stay natural-looking as everyone likes the girl-next-door look. Oh, and be friendly with the other girls as they'll recommend you for other jobs.

THIS IS YOUR "NAKED" COVER. WHAT WAS IT LIKE THE FIRST TIME YOU STRIPPED FOR A SHOOT?

It just felt really natural. The first one was a test shot at a photographer's house. Then I had a few shoots in one week. I was more scared about people's reactions than the actual shoot. When I'm away from work, I'm shy in front of the camera – when someone takes a photo of me, I just pull a stupid face. ➤

The Real Rosie Jones

AND HOW DO YOU FEEL WHEN YOU HAVE TO GET NAKED WITH ANOTHER GIRL?

In the beginning, I thought, “I’d never do that,” but now, as we’re all mates, it’s natural.

One thing, though: if I have to look into another girl’s eyes, I just burst out laughing.

WHO’S THE SEXIEST ZOO GIRL?

There are so many. Holly and India are amazing, and so is Lissy Cunningham. Her body is incredible.

WHEN YOU’RE ON A SHOOT, WHAT DO YOU

PREFER TO WEAR: SWIMWEAR OR LINGERIE?

I like swimwear, because that means I’m in a foreign country. Come on ZOO, take me away again! When I’m shooting inside, I like sexy underwear – stockings and suspenders, especially. Often I’ll buy stuff that I’ve worn at a shoot and wear it at home. ➔

“I APPRECIATE THE FEMALE FORM”

SOMETHING WE'RE SURE
THE LUCKY GENT WILL APPRECIATE...

You need to make an effort.
Not necessarily with underwear, because men will always like a naked female.
But you have to make an effort to stop them straying.
Men look at other women;
that's OK. Just don't cheat!
DO YOU LIKE CHECKING OUT THE LADIES?

Oh yeah! I follow loads of random models from all over the world on Instagram. I'm not a lesbian but I appreciate the female form. I don't want to snog them – they're just so much more interesting to look at than men. And I'm sure ZOO readers would agree with me on that!

150 DAYS OF WATER

After two wheels and wetsuits, endurance events veteran Sean Conway now plans to run the entire UK...

INTERVIEW: Andy Jones
PICS: News Syndication

Aunique triathlon will be attempted for the first time this month. Having already swum and cycled the length of Great Britain, 33-year-old Sean Conway will swap his wetsuit for trainers and run the length of the UK, becoming the first person to finish a British Isles triathlon. After spending over 150 days bobbing in water with only a support boat for company, Conway tells us about growing a beard to ward off jellyfish, eating packets of butter and having a swollen tongue. Take it away, Sean...

SEAN CONWAY
SWIMMING FOR BRITAIN!

HI, SEAN! HOW DID THIS MAD CHALLENGE START?

The cycle was because I had no money for a holiday, so I bought a rubbish bike from eBay and decided to go on a ride. I ended up cycling the length of Britain, some 1,300 miles. It took 25 days in the end: the record is 44 hours, so I was pretty bad actually.

THEN YOU DECIDED TO SWIM THE UK...

The preparation was really hard. People thought I was joking and it was all a publicity stunt. All my time was spent checking out the tides and what boats I'd need.

HOW DID YOU TRAIN TO SWIM THAT DISTANCE?

I took the attitude that I would get fitter on the swim. At the time I didn't live anywhere near the sea, so I did all my strength work in the gym and pool. I also did a coaching session where they filmed me and improved my style. My stroke was dreadful, so I basically had to re-learn how to swim.

HOW CLOSE DID YOU COME TO DEATH ON THE SWIM?

As we were rounding Cape Wrath – five days from the end – a freak storm hit and the kayak my support team was in capsized. The boat also overturned, our yacht took on water and we lost paddles, fuel and food. The waves were 20-feet high and I had to swim while all this was going on. As the weather was getting so bad, I'd have to either complete the swim then or abandon it. I was fairly sure I'd drown at one point.

WE UNDERSTAND YOU NEARLY BAILED ON THE VERY FIRST DAY...

The first day was a nightmare. I couldn't reach the start point in a boat, so had to swim out there. Then the tide turned against me, so I ended up treading water for one-and-a-half hours.

ARE YOU EVEN ANY GOOD AT SPORTS?

No – I was crap at sport at school! I was 30 years old, miserable as a photographer and sold my business for £1 so I could start taking on challenges instead. I didn't join a gym throughout my 20s, but then I bought a bike and that was it: I realised I really love endurance events.

IS IT TRUE YOU GREW A BEARD TO FIGHT OFF JELLYFISH?

I shaved my beard off completely for aerodynamics, but I was stung by jellyfish so often I had to grow the beard really long. It's now quite a weight I'm carrying around!

WHAT WAS THE WORST THING ABOUT YOUR CHALLENGE?

Losing so much weight. I was 10st 10lb at my heaviest – I'm 5ft 8in – and I lost all the fat in my body. You need fat around your kidneys and liver or you start to get ill. The cold also gave me frostbite in my toes and – because of the salt – my tongue swelled up. I constantly felt sick every single day, which meant losing fluids everywhere.

TELL US ABOUT EATING PACKETS OF BUTTER FOR CALORIES...

The worst part was taking on 2,000 calories and then being immediately sick and having to eat it all again. I was burning so much energy I'd have to eat blocks of butter, which I melted into a bowl of soup, topped with walnut and coconut oil.

Because my tongue was so swollen, everything was blended into a purée.

AND YOU DID THIS ON A SUPER-SMALL BUDGET?

I had to beg and scrape for any bits of kit, goggles and swimsuits. At one point, I was so pathetically small – I weighed less than 10 stone – I was sent a child's extra large wetsuit. The boat we had was pretty old, and there was no hot or running water or facilities. I went well over a month without having a shower. However, it was the crew I felt sorry for!

WHAT DID YOU SEE?

A lot of my sessions were at 3am in pitch-black because the weather and tides were good. You have to swim then or you're finished. I saw dolphins, seals and the luminous phosphorescence – crazy lights shining underwater.

WHAT HAPPENED WHEN YOU ATTEMPTED TO CYCLE THE GLOBE?

In 2012, I set out to be the fastest person to cycle the planet. After three weeks I was ahead of schedule, averaging 180 miles per day.

Then in America, I was run over by a speeding driver.

I had concussion and a nasty compressed fracture of my spine. It was worth it, though.

The Atacama Desert, where it hasn't rained for 400 years, is breathtaking.

Liverpool's seven-step transformation!

Ex-Red John Barnes on how Brendan Rodgers has brought the Merseysiders back into the race for the top four!

THE BACK THREE!

"Brendan Rodgers arrived at Anfield wanting to play 3-4-3, but didn't have the personnel to do so. The introduction of Emre Can has changed everything.

"Can was signed as Steven Gerrard's successor, but never quite found his feet as Jordan Henderson, Joe Allen and Lucas flourished in the middle of the park. Rodgers overcame any stubbornness, realising the German is perfect at bringing the ball out of defence and linking with the midfield.

"This formation won't last, forever, but for now it's bringing the best out of the players. I'm glad Rodgers didn't persevere with a set-up that didn't work."

COUTINHO'S THE MAN!

"Moving the little Brazilian into the No10 role has been key in Liverpool's revival. It's always been his position, but unfortunately we've rarely seen him there because of the need to accommodate the likes of Suarez, Sturridge and Sterling into a front three.

"With Suarez now at Barcelona, Rodgers has made the clever move to push Sterling further up the pitch, which has unlocked Coutinho's creativity."

DROPPING STEVEN GERRARD!

"Dropping one of Liverpool's greatest-ever players is a thankless task for any manager. Luckily for Rodgers, Steven suffered a pretty bad injury that's kept him out for nearly a month.

"Without Gerrard, Liverpool's league form has been incredible, winning every game. It's important for the other players to recognise that there's life after him, and that they are good enough to fill his boots. This has really raised their games."

WICKED WING-BACKS!

"The Reds were struggling to find a place in the team for Lazar Markovic that played to his strengths. The Serbian is great when running one-on-one against the opposition full-backs, so slipping him in at wing-back has enabled him to do exactly that.

"Jordan Ibe has also been brought back from his loan at Derby and is blossoming. It's testament to the players and Rodgers, as they've completely understood a role that's foreign to them."

MAGIC FROM MIGNOLET!

"The Belgian has always been Liverpool's No1. Rather than being dropped, he was merely taken out of the firing line, which has done wonders for his confidence.

"Rodgers is fantastic at improving players, as we've seen on more than one occasion, but Mignolet is probably the best example. I also think the fans have a massive part to play in his form: they've backed him through his sticky patch and now he's as good as anyone."

Markovic: great in one-on-ones

RETURN OF STURRIDGE!

"The injury to Daniel Sturridge was equally as important as Suarez leaving the club. Liverpool weren't playing bad football before Daniel was injured on international duty, but in his absence they continued to move the ball around nicely but had no killer instinct in front of goal.

"Raheem Sterling put in a good effort up top, but it's clear he's not a striker as the goals dried up."

STALE STERLING!

"I don't believe a player that's only been in first team action for 18 months can be burnt out, but if Brendan Rodgers thought he needed a rest, that's fair enough.

"Now he's had his jaunt to Jamaica, and he's returned as potent as ever. You're always going to get slight inconsistencies from a youngster, but he's a great prospect to have and if he needs to keep him in cotton wool, so be it."

Sturridge:
killer instinct

BARNES' VERDICT ON UNITED!

"They're not playing well at the moment, but still find themselves in the top four – and that proves how much character they have. United have the ability to take three points from games that they've looked like losing, but my slight concern with them is that they struggle with balance. They have a great array of attacking talent, but it doesn't seem to complement the defensive side of their game well."

"In England when a team isn't doing as well as they should be, they often over-invest in the attacking department when they should be looking at defenders – just as United did in the summer."

John Barnes was speaking on behalf of titanbet.co.uk as part of their Ultimate Fan competition, where supporters can win an all-expenses paid trip to watch three of Europe's Cup Finals

SATURDAY
21 MARCH RBS SIX NATIONS
England vs France
5pm, BBC One

Ireland are the northern hemisphere's best hope

"At the start of the championships, I thought four teams had a realistic chance of taking the trophy home. England have performed as expected and were beaten by the better side in Dublin. The Irish have justified the hype, playing strong rugby and maintaining it against tricky opposition. The French haven't been as good as people anticipated, while Wales made their job really tough, losing to England in the first game."

Ireland: the home nations' best bet!

It's better to be winning than losing!

"England have learned an awful lot as a squad throughout this Six Nations championship. I don't subscribe to the idea that you learn the most while you're losing – and that doesn't bode well for Scotland. No team in the world wants to lose a game, be it at club level or a group of top internationals! You learn much, much more winning games and there's only one way I'd like to be going into the World Cup – and that's with the winning habit."

England are in good shape

"England may have slipped up against the Irish but on the basis of this Six Nations, I'm backing them to beat any team that's put in front of them. England can be proud of their performances during this tournament - Ireland aside - and if they finish off the job and hope their neighbours can do them a favour, they'll still be in with a shout of lifting the trophy."

Teams mustn't ignore the basics

"England had a lot of time together to work on different elements of their game, and I think it's starting to come to fruition. They're a really strong team and only lost out to Ireland after failing to master the basic skills. Players and pundits often take the basics for granted, but if England had held all their passes, found a man each time or not given away as many penalties, they'd be sitting here in a different position."

England's backs need some work

"England have got a decent set of forwards, which most teams would be happy to head into the World Cup with, but their backline definitely needs work. Too often they've tried to be intricate and take too much time. If they were more direct and looked to attack earlier, they'd have more success finding scoring positions. I've been lucky enough to visit the camp: it's a hard-working environment, but a great place to work on your rugby!"

Johnny Sexton: always makes his kicks!

Home advantage is vital!

"Looking at these particular championships, you'd give Ireland the best chance of causing damage to the southern-hemisphere nations. They're a complete side and if it gets tough for them, they can always rely on Jonathan Sexton to make his kicks and get them out of trouble. England might not be the bookies' favourites but - mark my words - never ever back against the Red Rose boys on their own turf!"

Inside the breakdown at the Bernabeu!

Goal droughts, flaky formations and bust-ups... expert Guillem Balague reveals what's gone wrong for the European Champs

Real Madrid headed into this season as the Champions League holders, and won 13 out of their first 14 league games. Free-scoring Ronaldo was crowned world Player Of The Year, while Real won the World Club Championship.

But since 2014 ticked over to 2015, everything has changed. Real have lost five games since the start of January – as many as they lost in the whole of last season. So where did it all go wrong? Sky Sports' Guillem Balague gives us the inside track.

Guillem Balague!

RONALDO IS SUDDENLY RUBBISH!

Real heavily rely on the attacking trio of Cristiano Ronaldo, Gareth Bale and Karim Benzema. Ronaldo was fantastic throughout 2014, but since the turn of the year he has really struggled to replicate the form that saw him win the Ballon d'Or. He even experienced a two-month dry spell, failing to score from open play, and he also wasted 50 free-kicks!

“A lot was made of Ronaldo’s form after a 4-0 defeat to Atletico Madrid in La Liga. He was even pictured celebrating his 30th birthday right after the match. This didn’t go down well with the fans, but it’s a huge misconception that he didn’t invite his teammates: they just chose not to attend in the wake of a heavy loss to their local rivals.”

FICKLE FANS!

Real's fans are among the best in the world – when they're winning. They're also very knowledgeable, and they understand why the team is suffering, so won't be quick to jump on the players unless they're not fighting for the shirt. That's the reason the handkerchief waving made an appearance in their 4-3 Champions League defeat to Schalke: the fans wanted to voice their discontent at a lacklustre performance.

“Fan-based polls haven't helped: to voice the opinion you want your two best players benched sets a poor precedent. Bale and Ronaldo need the backing of the fans, as it's only a matter of time before they'll be back to their best.”

FALSE FORMATIONS!

There's a genuine footballing problem behind Real's recent poor form. Previously, you'd see 11 players fighting for each other, with midfielders joining attacks and attackers tracking back to defend. But now, that seems to have vanished...

"The departure of Xabi Alonso has played a huge part in the way Real set up. He worked so well, organising players in front of him: now, we see Ronaldo and Benzema attacking the same space. We could blame it on Carlo Ancelotti, but the players have to take responsibility."

ANCELOTTI'S STUBBORNNESS!

It's already been a long campaign for Carlo Ancelotti's men – and it's only March. Alongside their normal duties, they've had to take part in the Club World Cup and shunned a winter break to play a friendly in Dubai.

"The boss has opted to field his strongest XI on more occasions than not, and it's really starting to show. In recent weeks, we've seen Real only having to play one game a week and they've looked absolutely exhausted. The injury to Sergio Ramos, who is out with a pulled hamstring, could be a direct impact of Ancelotti's stubbornness when it comes to rotation."

BARCELONA ARE FLYING!

The Catalans have rediscovered their form, with Lionel Messi scoring 17 goals during Ronaldo's slump – and that is bad news for Real. Any time their title rivals are seen to be outperforming them, it upsets the balance between fans, players and management.

"If Barcelona hadn't been performing as they have in 2015, Real's problems would be less of a crisis, and more of a mere inconvenience. Nothing would get Real's campaign back on track more than beating Barça!"

The Ring Of Fire!

Welcome to 2014's Ring Of Fire that held up Olympiakos and PAOK's cup semi-final by an hour, after each set of fans united to light the ground up with flares as the players walked onto the pitch. If you think the only issue was an obstructed view from the smoke, think again: they also set fire to one dugout while using the pitch as a giant ashtray.

Flames are a common sight in Greek football, where numerous matches have been abandoned after fans created uncontrollable blazes, burning banners stolen from rival supporters. In this picture from last week, Olympiakos fans burn an AEK banner – in the first professional game since the league was suspended after crowd trouble...

Yes, this is a supporter taking on a policeman while disguised as a spearmint chew. Either that, or he wants to give him a really violent hug, but the gas is making him all bleary-eyed.

The fans haven't been the only ones causing trouble. A 2015 meeting of team officials ended in a mass brawl in the boardroom. And with more scenes like these, we're not surprised the government have stepped in to suspend the professional game more than once...
